PRAYER OF DEDICATION

by

Dr. James L. Fowle

God, our Father, Thou Who art the Father of lights, with whom there is no variableness, neither shadow cast by turning, to Thee we dedicate this house of learning that we have erected for Thy glory. Thou art our abiding Teacher, Sanctifier and Comforter — the Lord and Giver of life. May Thy Name be honored here and Thy commandments obeyed. Grant, we beseech Thee, that the light of knowledge may flourish in the minds of our students as the love of liberty is cherished in their hearts.

May this school building which we are now dedicating to Thee be a place where ignorance, superstition, and fear give place to knowledge, truth, and love.

Bless all who shall teach here and all who are taught. May Thy continuing favor rest upon our Girls' Preparatory School in such a way that all the achievements of the past shall be but prologue to the challenging future's progress.

The Service League of G.P.S., organized in 1958, is an honorary club. Its members are chosen from girls in the ninth and tenth grades who have been outstanding for their character, citizenship, school spirit, and scholarship. Provisional members are selected from the eighth grade. Its purpose is to serve the school. The Service League also attempts to instill in its members and in other students a more positive attitude toward leadership and service.

National Honor Society

The Duffy-Jarnagin Chapter of the National Honor Society is an honorary organization composed of Juniors and Seniors who, by the unanimous vote of the faculty, have displayed qualities of scholarship, leadership, citizenship, and service.

The Christian Forum, composed of a group of concerned young Christians from the junior and senior classes, meets once a week to deal with the Christian attitude toward life, its many problems, and religion in general. Our programs consist of speakers outside the school, filmstrips, discussions within the club, and talks given by our own members. We strive to strengthen our faith so that we may constantly grow more like our Lord and Master, Jesus Christ.

Terpsichord is an advanced Modern Dance club, in which we try to create body movement that will express a thought, convey an idea, or relate a story. We try to do in dancing what an artist might do on canvas.

Membership is acquired by selection from tryouts. Girls in the ninth through the twelfth grades are eligible. The club meets Thursday after school from three until four o'clock. Near the end of the year, we present a Modern Dance program for the entertainment of the students and others who wish to attend. Terpsichord also plays an important part in training the girls to dance in the May Day Pageant.

LUCY ANN ADAMS and BETSY GOULD

I. SEVENTH GRADE—French and Indian War

In the bright and shining armor of new uniforms, we the army of '60 marched upon Fort G.P.S. led by General Cornelia Hines; Second-in-command, Mary Charles McPhail; Secretary of State, Betsy Johnson; and head of the Treasury Department, Shoshana Winer. Scouts for any lurking renegades were Elizabeth Cifers and Bonnie Kingston on the Student Council. Nancy Currey saw to it by the Welfare Drive that relief was sent to camps less fortunate than ours. Jackie Sanders, Nancy Currey, Mary Charles McPhail, and Cay Verlenden were singled out for special distinction in the May Day Parade, while Gladys Martin was awarded most outstanding trainer in boot camp (better known as "Best Rat"). Cay Verlenden led the Black Company; Barbara Newell, the Blue. Since Mrs. Coghlan had kept us on the edges of our seats with hair-raising accounts of Penelope and her disagreement with the Indians, we revenged ourselves by giving a come-as-you-are pow-wow for the faculty, one of whom, Miss Garrison, married into the McCallie Tribe across the river.

II. EIGHTH GRADE—Range Wars

Before we plunge into the wild range wars of the eighth grade, we must report that three warriors, Betty Barton, Sharon Collier, and Bitsy Williams bit the dust, but fortunately our ranks were swelled by Deanna Dunkerly, Marty Cannon, Suzanne Griffith, Pat Hale, Joan Haley, Bonnie Jean Munson, Martha Swingle, Wendy Wiggins, and Margot Williams. With eighth graders' fighting for more open range and the faculty struggling to put in fences, deputy sheriffs Nancy Currey and Mary Charles McPhail on the Student Council had quite a job riding herd on us, but were ably assisted by President of the Cattle Association, Shoshana Winer; Vice-President, Helen Miller; Secretary Bonnie Kingston; and Treasurer of the outfit, Susan Auten. For benefit of needier ranchers, Charlotte Wheland roped and tied us down to give to the Welfare Drive; Margaret Williams, Linda Buckner, Ellen Montague, and Starr Kruesi won our "Toys for Tots" rodeo sponsored by the Salvation Army. Rival ranges, Blacks and Blues, were led by Mary Groves and Anne B. Austin, respectively. Betsy Johnson, Joan Haley, Norma Diamond, Nancy Currey, Rachel Stewart, Bert Rutledge, Gladys Martin, and Barbara Newell led the attack in the "Battle of the Budget," after which peace terms were drawn up at a parent-faculty tea. Unfortunately, when cowboys are let loose for the evening, they cut loose; our barn dance was branded a stampede, and no class has dared one since.

III. NINTH GRADE—Revolutionary War

Our ninth grade was as disorganized as the Revolutionary War, but with President Charlotte Wheland, Vice-President Cay Verlenden, Secretary Helen Miller, and Treasurer Shoshana Winer in office, and with Joan Haley and Margot Williams posted as pickets around our disheveled group, we survived and even prospered. Marty Cannon, Deirdre Hamilton, Carolyn Razovsky, and Linda Thomas had gone back East after the Range Wars, but this year Gladys Hayes came as a welcome addition to the militia. The quarrel grew as rebels Carol Corbitt, Charlotte Fox, Betsy Johnson, Cay Verlenden, Donnah Payne, Jane Poston, Evelyn Bailey, Barbara Newell, Ellen Montague, Wendy Wiggins, and Norma Diamond argued with the Hudson Bay Company over the question, "Did You Say Mink?" Margaret Williams led us in our Welfare Drive to aid cities besieged by the enemy, and our growing country began to indulge in the departments inevitable to any government; Junior Glee Club led by Cornelia Hines, Kathy Bacon, and Carol Corbitt; Library Club led by Nancy Currey and Bonnie Kingston. Instigating internal skirmishes were Wendy Wiggins, Black, and Charlotte Fox, Blue. Romantic interest was provided by Judy Bullington who inspired the May Day Troops in her lead role as the Valentine Girl. We Freshmen made a successful attack on Nashville under the competent generalship of Moore, Williams, Walters, and Bayless (now promoted to the title Barth; known for her strategy, authority, and demand for historical accuracy) where we even took the capital guided by a suave movie star from "Davy Crockett." This year's Freshman-Sophomore Valentine affair was much more sedate than the last year's, and the close of the war saw Nancy Currey win the Congressional Medal (or Freshman Cup), one of the school's most outstanding honors.

IV. TENTH GRADE—Civil War

If a war can be romantic, the Civil War certainly was; and if a class can be romantic, we sophomores certainly were. Leading our charge into the battle of fifteen-sixteen were Joan Haley, Cay Verlenden, Mary Charles McPhail, and Bonnie Kingston with Shoshana Winer and Gladys Hayes serving sentry duty on the Student Council. Marie Allison, Jayne Cole, Sally Elkins, Molly Johnson, Anita Keith, Ellen Montague, and Phillis Scoggin had set out for less controversial territory, but Deedee Driver and Wendy Wehrman arrived in the thick of the fray. Lucy Ann Adams, Norma Diamond, Jane Poston, Cay Verlenden, and Charlotte Wheland were our first "Static" representatives on the "voice of the people." Norma Diamond became blockade runner for the Welfare Drive to get supplies into stranded areas. We spent a gay "Evening in Paris" at the Sophomore Ball and were initiated into three novelties—driving, May Day in a gym, and outlining Parrott's William Shakespeare. Captains Parks and Newell organized the Black and Blue companies that hectic year in which we struggled with Caesar, Napoleon, American literature notes, and infinity. We concluded this war with a triumphant march in perfect step (an unprecedented event) around three Maypoles.

V. ELEVENTH GRADE—World War I

Just as World War I marked the coming of a new era, so our Junior year brought us more independence and ventures into the adult world. Left at a disadvantage by the loss of Gladys Hayes, Adair Bryan, Susan Rickman, Allison Webb, and Suzanne Griffith missing in action, we were happy to have Gerry Bailey and to reclaim Ellen Montague. Jane Poston, Helen Miller, Joan Haley, and Susan Auten were our superior officers assisted by the capable trio Cay Verlenden, Cornelia Hines, and Shoshana Winer on M.P. duty. Bonnie Kingston was in charge of the Welfare of refugees, and reporters surviving the Civil War in addition to Betsy Gould, Joan Haley, Bonnie Kingston, Mary Charles McPhail, Judy Sherman, and Margot Williams maintained freedom of the press under the able leadership of editor Charlotte Wheland and assistant editor Lucy Ann Adams. Drafted into a special branch of service, the National Honor Society, were Lynn Bryan, Lucy Ann Adams, Nancy Currey, Carol Corbitt, Margot Williams, Shoshana Winer, Susan Auten, Betsy Gould, and Mary Charles McPhail. Lucy Ann Adams decided that since this was germ warfare, she would get in on the germs, and consequently covered the school with glory in first the regional and then the national Science Fair. Myra Silver led the Singing Corps while Ann P. Austin and Lynn Bryan marched at the head of the Black and Blue Regiments. In the field of athletics a football team rivaling that of West Point was founded and the password of the school became 10%—a signal to: 1. straighten back 2. tuck in derriere 3. project chest 4. Lift chin for inspection. To entertain the troops two dances were held; an informal "Caribbean Cruise" and a lovely Japanese garden prom to say "Sayonara" to the year. In early spring we Juniors left the home front for reconnoitering and adventure in unknown territory—Washington and New York—under the careful supervision and "against the better judgment of" Miss Moyer, Miss Moore, Mrs. Reed, and Mrs. Wheeler.

Although Miss Moyer ordered strictly that "No one who is mischievous or who gets sick easily can go," she repented on seeing the one or two eligible volunteers remaining, and we all set out gaily on the expedition. No campaign remains long secret when some seventy odd girls are in on it, and soon the whole train knew the nature of our mission. Solely by the endeavors of Mr. De Loach, "affectionately labeled Mr. Fixit or Roachie," did we escape the terrors of traffic and time schedules; and bravely did he lead us forth to the charming hit play, "My Fair Lady." Safely worried home by Mr. De Loach, we finished our Junior year in a tone of excitement with Cay Verlenden the recipient of the Grace McCallie Scholarship, and Jane Poston of the Senior Scholarship.

VI. TWELFTH GRADE—World War II

We plunged into our last struggle with the loss of Linda Buckner, Mary Alice Davis, and Mendy Lawrence and no additions to the force. In charge of any courts-martial for breach of discipline were Cornelia Hines, President of the Student Council, with Jane Poston, Shoshana Winer, and Mary Charles McPhail as senior representatives. Winning the 1959 elections by majority vote were Nancy Currey, President; Lynn Bryan, Vice-President; Norinne Hickman, Secretary; and Gladys Martin, Treasurer. Responsibility for the Welfare Drive was voted to Charlotte Fox,

President, and Barbara Newell, secretary, who hit an all time record of over $400.

Betsy Gould was chosen commander of the National Honor Society with Betty Buchanan, Judy Henning, Cornelia Hines, Jane Poston, Judy Sherman, Margaret Williams as additions to the ranks. Myra Silver headed the Glee Club. Spurring on the Black and Blue squads to victory were Janet Parks and Anne B. Austin. The spy system for the Annual included ringleaders Charlotte Wheland and Susan Auten, and henchmen: Lucy Ann Adams, Margaret Ann Bridge, Carol Corbitt, Norma Diamond, Robin Evans, Betsy Gould, Joan Haley, Bonnie Kingston, Cay Verlenden, Margaret Williams and Margot Williams.

Janet Parks (cutest), Betsy Johnson (most vivacious), Jane Poston (most nicest), Margot Williams (wittiest), Betsy Gould and Lucy Ann Adams (most likely to succeed), and Hazel Bickerstaff (most faux pas-est) won Congressional Medals while Anne Dudley and Joan Haley headed the May Day Parade. Carol Corbitt, Judy Sherman, Gerry Bailey, Deanna Dunkerley, and Lucy Ann Adams were outstanding scientists of the war. So the wars ended as Commander-in-Chief Tucker signed the peace treaty.

Class Will

I, Lucy Ann Adams, will my molds to whoever is not afraid of scratching an athlete's foot (caused by one of these) in the middle of Mrs. Clark's Bible reading.

We, Ann(e) Austin, will my beloved nickname "Hoss" back to the ranch where it might be more appropriate.

I, Susan Auten, even though I hate to give them up, will my precious children to the college world.

We, Kathy and Mary Bacon, will our ability to get snowed so easily to Martha and Sally, who are so particular.

I, Evelyn Bailey, will my ability to say the wrong thing loud enough for the right people to hear it to anyone dumb enough to accept it.

We, Gerry Bailey and Deanne Dunkerley, will our tesseract to Miss Moyer, since we are sure that it is the easiest way to explain the expansion of a cube.

We, Hazel Bickerstaff and Carole Deitch, will our inability to think up a cute will to the future seniors, who we know will have the same trouble.

I, Billie Bishop, will my Spanish back to Zorro.

I, Margaret Ann Bridge, will to Margaret Ann McCallie the exclusive privilege of using the name "Margaret Ann" while at G.P.S.

I, Lynn Bryan, will my ability to jump back to the kangaroos.

I, Betty Buchanan, will my low alto voice to some faculty members who are such colorful sopranos.

I, Judy Bullington, will my writer's cramp (from writing a letter a day to a certain college) to all those Juniors who will be doing the same thing next year.

I, Virginia Chandler, will my ability to never open a book and still get by to my sister, Margaret, who studies all night and still cannot pass.

I, Elizabeth Cifers, will my ability in mathematics to my sister, Virginia, in hopes that she has better sense than to take it.

I, Mary Lou Collins, will my ability to say the wrong thing at the wrong time to anyone who is odd enough to say the right thing at the right time.

I, Pat Daugherty, will my chapel talk to my sister, Judy, who never has anything done on time.

We, Norma Diamond and Robin Evans, will do anything we darn well please!

I, Dee Dee Driver, will my problem of not knowing which name to use to anyone who doesn't have a nickname.

I, Anne Dudley, will my unique ability to be a "stumbling block" to Susan Evans, who is such a quiet and reserved child.

I, June Fletcher, will my trip to Atlanta to anyone who has enough nerve to walk through the Atlanta Cabana in slacks.

I, Charlotte Fox, will my calm, cool, and collected ability to speak in public to Camille Salisbury, who always seems so nervous.

I, Betsy Gould, will my harp to the angels and my castanets to Don Juan.

I, Mary Groves, would will my conscientious attitude to my sister, DeDe, except she already has it.

I, Joan Haley, being middle sister to Janice and Judy, will nothing. What Janice didn't take to college, Judy borrowed and never returned.

I, Judy Henning, will my block head to Miss Moyer, so that she will have a good demonstration of the rectangular solid.

I, Norinne Hickman, will my vivacious personality to Leanne Kemp, who is so quiet.

I, Cornelia Hines, will my nickname, "Corny," back to Kansas.

We, Betsy Johnson and Jackie Sanders, will our fond love for McCallie to next year's Seniors who don't know any better.

We, Bonnie Kingston, Nancy Currey, and Wendy Wiggins, will a fleet of "U-Drive-Its" to the boarding students of Baylor and McCallie, so that next year's Seniors can live in peace.

I, Starr Klien, will my tennis racket to Cindy Kemp, who doesn't have one, I'm sure.

I, Starr Kruesi, will my pilot's license and beat-up bug to Mrs. Addis, so that she will surely be able to get to school every day next year.

I, Marilyn Light, will my Signal Mountain Taxi service to Ginger Baer and Charlotte Smith, in hopes that they will run it with better success than I have.

We, Gladys Martin and Janet Parks, will our Bardot bodies to the science department for future investigation.

I, Joy Martin, will my hatred of boys to my sister, Polly Ann, who loves them so.

We, Doris Effron, Ellen Montague, and Ann Willingham, will our collection of TV Guides to Sara Franklin and Sally Smartt to keep them busy on week-ends next year.

I, Bonnie Munson, will my "boy-crazy attitude" to Leanne Kemp in hopes she will overcome her shyness around boys.

I, Bert Rutledge, will our family car to my sister, Robin, who won't get to use it either.

I, Barbara Newell, will my black bomb to atomic research to be used as a protection for our country in case of war.

I, Donnah Payne, will my nonchalance to the school to be doled out as needed before Christmas and Spring Holidays.

I, Drewry Payne, will my peculiar ailments to Mayo's for further investigation.

I, Jane Poston, will my athletic potential, that is, tennis, basketball, and volleyball—to Karen Duffy, who has no possibilities.

I, Gail Robbins, will to become the Tennessee Williams of the future.

I, Bea Rutledge, will my prejudice for Baylor to Mrs. Baker, who knows so little about the school.

I, Judy Sherman, will my height to Mrs. Thomas' basketball team in hopes that it will be able to outreach, outjump, and outshoot all the other teams.

I, Judy Shipley, will not give my car to Polly Ann Martin, but I do hope she gets one of her own.

I, Myra Silver, will my tremendous height to Janie Deloach, who is trying so hard to stop growing.

I, Rachel Stewart, will my histrionic ability to Camille Salisbury, who has so little.

I, Martha Swingle, will my mathematical abilities to anyone who is fool enough to take them.

I, Sherry Tanner, will my ability to play tennis to my sister, Wendy, who can't seem to get the knack.

I, Margaret True, will my love of nursery rhymes to the coming Freshmen, who may need a little help from Mother Goose.

I, Cay Verlenden, will my high heels to Janie Deloach, who will appreciate the value of this gift.

I, Wendy Wehrman, will my braces back to Dr. Leventhal.

We, Charlotte Wheland and Carol Corbitt, will our ability to get along with each other to our fathers in hopes that someday they will invent a new product, "Double-Coke!"

We, Margaret Williams and Helen Miller, will all the cool McCallie boys to South America in hopes that they will thaw out there.

I, Margot Williams, will all my dates to that poor, timid little Evelyn Kennedy.

I, Shoshana Winer, will my multi-color tinkertoys to Miss Moyer in order that next year's Seniors will be able to draw solid figures better than we did.

Class Prophecy

Lucy Ann Adams works in the moon lab and raises baby molds.

Ann P. Austin, a preacher's wife, has three children who are all cowards in life.

Anne B. Austin and Starr Kruesi have raced across the Atlantic Ocean, only to tie again.

Susan Auten and Joan Haley have opened up a home for juvenile delinquents. Since all of their forty children (twenty each) turned out to be such brats, they had no other choice. We knew they would succeed—at something.

Kathy Bacon has created plaid fingernail polish.

Mary Bacon, Wendy Wehrmann, and Drewry Payne are the joint owners of a fashionable New York beauty salon. Wendy and Drewry style and DYE hair; Mary gives effervescent bubble baths.

Evelyn Bailey is a world-famous plastic surgeon with Bea Rutledge as her head nurse.

Gerry Bailey is billed as New York's "Red-headed Bombshell" at the Blue Angel.

Hazel Bickerstaff has a drag strip up Elder Mountain. "If you can't beat 'em, hit 'em," is her motto.

Billie Bishop is now a Spanish Senora. She can't get away from it!

Margaret Ann Bridge is back at G.P.S. to give Mrs. Ingwalson tips on advanced chemistry.

Lynn Bryan has set a new world's record in high jumping at the Olympics.

Betty Buchanan has moved up North with her Yankee husband and has become an ardent Yankee herself.

Judy Bullington has astounded Russia by her interpretation of the "Firebird" ballet.

Virginia Chandler is a popular 1985 novelist.

Elizabeth Cifers has made her debut at the Met as the Ningtingale in the opera Les Oiseaux.

Mary Lou Collins is the sweetheart of Annapolis.

Carol Corbitt is the chief engineer on the problem of how to put a round bottle top on a square "Coke" bottle.

Nancy Currey is called by Walter Winchell—"the most popular and promising young actress on Broadway."

Pat Daugherty spends most of her time in the "clink" for disturbing the peace.

Carole Deitch manufactures multicolored mascara.

Norma Diamond, who was the Glamour Queen of the hockey team in college, is now the Baroness von Gutenberg.

Deedee Driver has just won the National Open Golf Championship.

Anne Dudley has just returned from collecting snow from the atmosphere for distribution at Baylor, McCallie, G.P.S. dances.

Deanna Dunkerley will use her artistic ability by repairing hot rods in a body shop.

Doris Effron has made Effron's an international chain, specializing in fabulous materials for May Day costumes.

Robin Evans is the author of "How to Obtain 'Savoir Faire' in Thirty Easy Lessons."

June Fletcher is head of the Mathematics Department at G.P.S.

Charlotte Fox is the "wolf" warden at the Bronx Zoo.

Betsy Gould is the bongo drummer for the Hawaiian Philharmonic.

Mary Groves, a celebrity, gives away the secret of how to have rosy cheeks without rouge.

Pat Hale, who never had a car of her own, has one of every color of the rainbow since she married into the Henry Ford family.

Judy Henning has replaced Einstein's Theory of Relativity with Henning's Theory of Irrelevancy.

Norinne Hickman and Sherry Tanner have opened a Touring Agency for houseparties at various beaches—Daytona, Myrtle, etc.

Cornelia Hines is the first female Archbishop of Canterbury.

Betsy Johnson manages a car rental service at Baylor.

Bonnie Kingston has developed an atomic reflector to speed up sun-tanning in January.

Starr Klein is the director of a Polo Club.

Marilyn Light is a night club dancer at the Moulin Rouge.

Mary Charles McPhail is the agriculturist who discovered sistonium leaves to cure all ills of separated lovers.

Gladys Martin has skipped the country after having embezzled so much money from the Senior Class.

Joy Martin is the hostess of her own show, "Tonight With Joy and Her Friends."

Helen Miller is teaching Yankees "y'all."

Ellen Montague is the owner of Montague's Muffler Shop.

Bonnie Jean Munson has just flown to Washington to receive the coveted award for the Nation's Safest Driver.

Barbara Newell is the author of the world's best seller: Gullible's Travels.

Janet Parks has been elected by the unanimous decision of her collaborators as the head of the History Department at G.P.S.

Donnah Payne is the Professor of Nonchalance at the University of Slap-Happiness.

Jane Poston is the editor of a new and excitingly different Virgil pony.

Gail Robbins is now floating down the Nile as Cleopatra in Jerry Hall's production of "Sink or Swim."

Alberta Rutledge has replaced June as the head of the Mathematics Department when June eloped in the middle of the school year.

Jackie Sanders is the head of the Southern branch of the Slenderella chain . . . She was always such a tub!

Judy Sherman is now the head of the committee that makes out the questions for the National Merit Tests; she has eliminated all social studies questions—Thank Goodness!

Judy Shipley has now bought out the Arthur Murray Dance Studio.

Myra Silver has written a popular new ballet called "Stewardess in Flight."

Rachel Stewart is working on her Master's in Clairvoyance at the University of the Future.

Martha Swingle, having given up all hope, has formed a new club called Spinsters U.S.A.

Margaret True is the First Lady of McCallie.

Cay Verlenden is the new president of the Junior League.

Charlotte Wheland is Chattanooga's Auntie Mame.

Wendy Wiggins has become Greenwich Village's Beatnik Home-Coming Queen.

Margaret Williams, because of the numerous threats and personal attacks on her life by irate husbands, has announced her retirement from the field of fashion.

Margot Williams, the singin' gitar player, accompanied by the New York Philharmonic, has made the current Number 1 song in the nation, "Don't Be Cruel to My Saint Bernard."

Ann Willingham manufactures black peanut butter, green caviar, chocolate-covered sardines, and blue pretzels for color-blind gourmets with rather queer tastes and unusually strong stomachs.

Shoshana Winer is the president of the National Association for the Preservation of Yanks.

Essay

MY TRUE SECURITY

In every faltering human, a basic instinct thirsts for warmth and assurance. An infant crying out in the dark is comforted when he senses security in the strength of his mother's arms. As a child, he is surrounded by a defensive wall of home, church, and school. All too soon, life, with one sweeping blow of maturity, sends the carefully laid bricks of protection clattering to the ground.

When first confronted with the vast world of knowledge, the school boy recognizes the challenge to his stronghold of security. Perhaps he will meet the challenge or perhaps the test will prove too great and he will surrender to doubt and insecurity.

At last, well on his way to knowledge, he feels pride in his accomplishments. Security becomes cloaked in smugness. By slowly molding his mind, he creates a vast resource for security. His own mind will always afford him a sort of security; he can always fall back on his education. As far back as 62 B. C. the Roman orator Cicero exclaimed, "When education is added to natural ability, there is a singular and outstanding trait which I cannot name." That which he could not name is security.

The young adult is tossed into the grinding business machine. As soon as his crutches are kicked from beneath him and his barrier of security must be begun anew under his own efforts, he is on his own. As a full fledged member of the new order of executives, he begins sapping the childhood comfort from the deceiving idols, wealth, prominence, and social standing. The former requirement for security now assumes an unfamiliar shape: a gnawing need for peace of mind which has been lost in the shuffle. There is nothing on God's good earth as fortifying for a mortal as a good night's sleep, free from haunting stress and worry. It does seem ludicrous that a brilliant business mind cannot revert to a solution as simple as consulting a Heavenly psychiatrist who has a reputation dating from the beginning of time.

In ages past, philosophers have considered devious methods of obtaining peace and security from their gods. Sacrifice, wealth, and pleading have left the images silent. As master of the world, Julius Caesar was surrounded by Rome's invincible army; yet, where were his cohorts when he cried, "Et tu, Brute?" The United States laid her trust in her formidable array of arms; yet we remember Pearl Harbor. The depression years saw all the signs of wealth and prosperity sucked into the economic whirlpool; thousands of Americans did not know where to begin remodeling the pieces of their self-made security. From the pages of the Holy Bible, comes the story of Daniel. There was a heroic soul who weathered the night in a den of wild beasts hungry for meat. Daniel rested soundly that night, because he could recognize God's invisible shield closing down around him.

The commodity called security is doled out impartially. Unable to grasp security, many people attempt to counterfeit it with popularity, wealth, or beauty; money cannot buy it. In what intangible balance could one pound of peace of mind be weighed? It is showered upon those who can see from this life into the great beyond where security will meet its perfection in the ever-present comfort and presence of God. To know God is to know security.

Ask a successful man why he labors so diligently, and he will usually answer "So that my family may know security." Thus God, as a Father, works among the souls of men so that all His children may know the peace and security of His presence. America is a nation founded under God. Every Christian parent promises to rear his child according to God's laws of life. Since her beginning, America has been striding in the right direction. Until God is truly President of these United States, America will not again know a dark night, free from the glaring searchlights and radar screens. How far and how long will America trust her radar?

IN MEMORIAM

MISS GRACE ELIZABETH MOORE

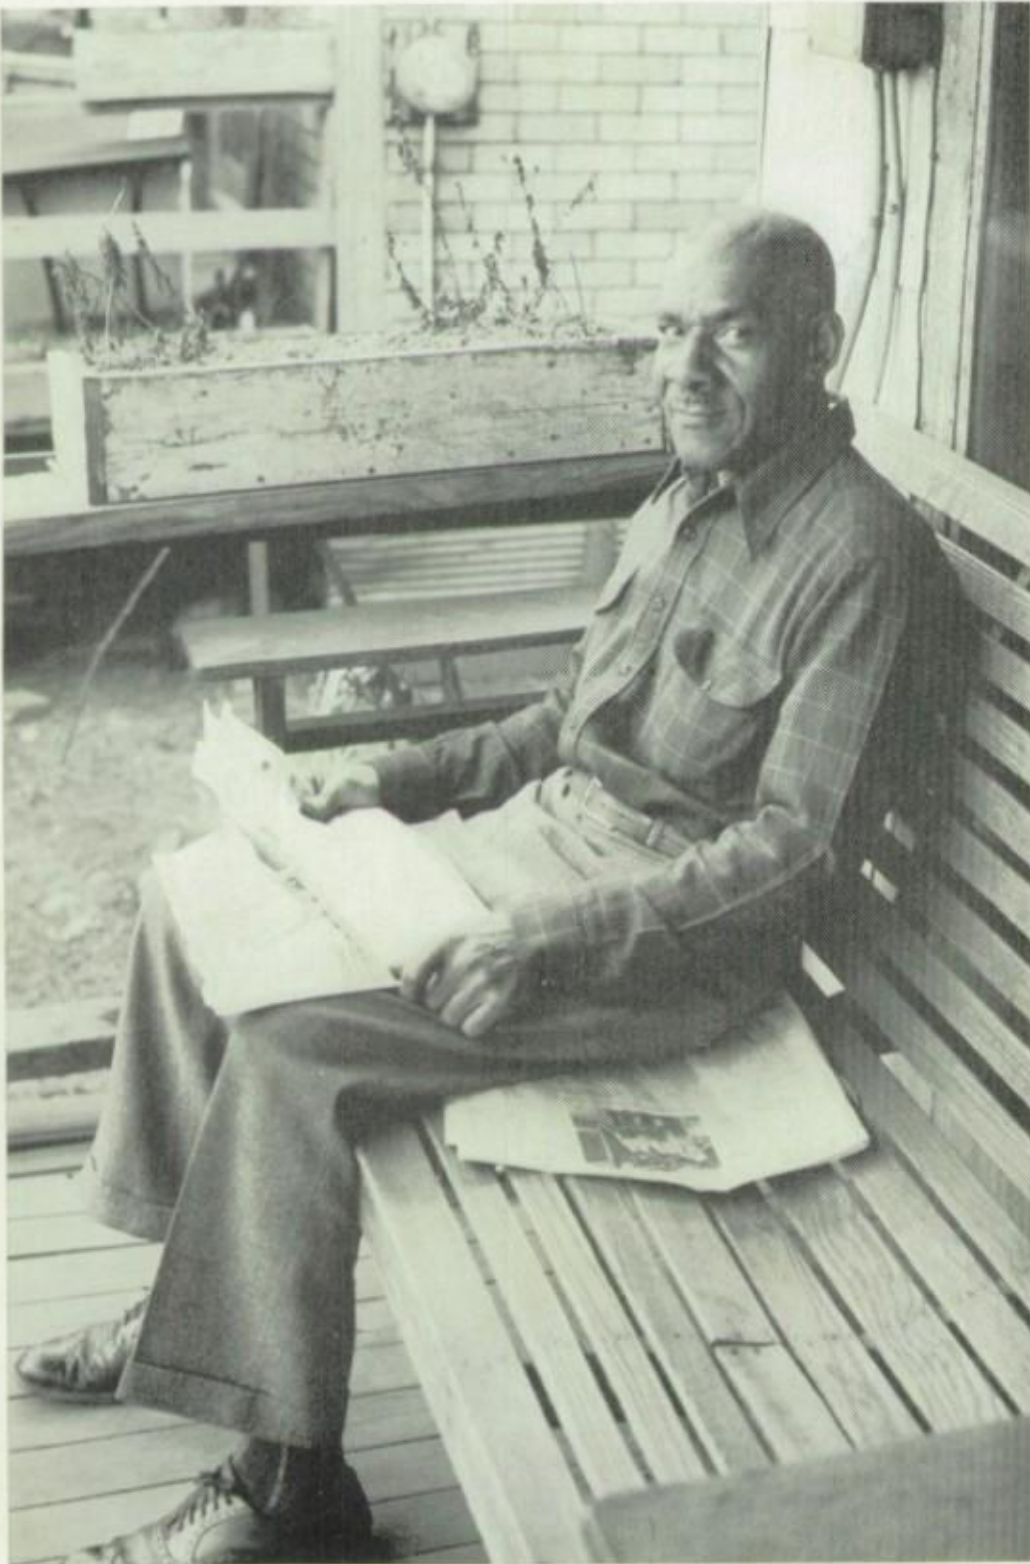

*"E'en as she trod that day to God
So walked she from her birth
In gentleness and honesty
In beauty and clean mirth."*

Robert "Sam" Bayless was as much a part of Girls' Preparatory School as rat week, as beloved as Friday afternoon, and as familiar as the building itself. Sam was the colored janitor who looked after the school and its students (or "babies" as he called us, but not to our faces) for many years. Physically Sam was a small man with a homely nose and with a face that was faintly reminiscent of Nasser's. Cheerfully grumpy was he, continually griping and muttering dire prophecies, yet always kind and ready to laugh. His laugh was a trademark. It generally came out as a loud, "Henh! Henh! Henh." One day an insurance agent came to school to interview Sam.

"And tell me, Mr. Bayless; do you have any dependents?" questioned the man.

"The only dependents I've got are Miz Tucker and Miz Clark!" replied Sam. Indeed, Miss Tucker and Mrs. Clark were dependent on Sam. He was a fixture of the school. "Was" I say, for now he has retired, and, as children of life, we have not forgotten.
